Applying for Residency Reclassification

Students are granted residency classification based on the information provided on the initial admissions application. Applicants who are not U.S. citizens are required to submit a copy of their permanent resident card or I-94 for reclassification consideration. All residency reclassification requests and documentation are accepted until the 30th calendar day of the term. The college has ten (10) business days to review a completed application before making a decision on the reclassification request. If the application is approved, adjustments to the tuition will be applied to the term for which the reclassification was submitted. If the application materials are incomplete or received after the 30th calendar date of the term, the request will be reviewed for the following term. Residency changes are not retroactive.

Supporting documentation is defined in two categories: proof of physical presence and proof of intent to remain in the state of Washington. Students applying for reclassification will be asked to provide these documents as part of their application materials. Acceptable types of documents are listed below.

Course placement is an important step toward student success. Prior to accessing placement services, students must complete an application for admission. Many courses at Clark College have placement prerequisites for English and Mathematics ability. The course that students place into determines how they progress through their program of study and how long their degree will take. We have a variety of ways to assess skills, and one method may not work for all. Visit www.clark.edu/assessment (<http://www.clark.edu/enroll/admissions/assessment/>) for more information on available placement and retesting options.

High School+

360-992-2741

Begun in 2015, High School+ is a program that helps students earn their high school diplomas in a more timely and convenient way than was previously available. The High School+ curriculum combines basic skills coursework with more rigorous academic education and training so that students can upgrade their skills while working toward a high school credential. The coursework is listed in the schedule as College and Academic Preparation (CAP). CAP is designed both to help students earn their high school diploma and/or prepare for the GED[®] exam. In addition, the coursework can help students who have already completed high school or the GED[®] but who need to improve their academic skills before entering into their program of study at Clark College.

Adults interested in participating in the High School+ program will need to apply for admission, submit their high school transcripts, take the CASAS test, and meet with the High School Completion Advisor prior to beginning their classes.

General Educational Development (GED[®]) Testing

Clark College is an official General Educational Development (GED[®]) testing site. The GED[®] tests provide a high school credential to adults who have not graduated from a traditional high school. Participants in GED[®] testing may go on to further their education at Clark College following the examination process or can participate in traditional college classes while completing the GED tests.

The GED[®] test is designed for adults who are 19 years old or older and who have not received a traditional high school diploma. Examinees who are 16 to 18 years old and wish to take the GED test must provide a high school release form from the school district in which they live.

The GED[®] examinations are given in the following four (4) subject areas:

- Social Studies
- Science
- Mathematics
- Language Arts

Successful completion of each of these examinations leads to the issuance of a GED[®] certificate.

The GED[®] test is now offered in a computer-based format. In order to begin the process of obtaining a GED[®], participants may register online at <https://GED.com/> (<https://ged.com/>). The GED[®] test must still be taken in person at an official GED[®] testing center.
